

Designed for Your Needs: Stonebridge at Montgomery Offers Assisted Living in New Jersey

When first considering a move to an assisted living community, you may not be sure exactly what an assisted living community is or what living in one means. It's easy to think of assisted living as a "retirement home" or "nursing home," but the standard of care and services for assisted living communities have been revolutionized in recent years. Now, assisted living feels more like home.

Living at Stonebridge at Montgomery means you'll receive the aid you need while still engaging in an active lifestyle. The Stonebridge at Montgomery Healthcare Center - Assisted Living, Skilled Nursing & Memory Care offers assistance in daily activities to boost your independence. And, at our continuing care retirement community (CCRC), needing a little help with daily activities doesn't mean you'll miss out on community life.

What Does Living in Assisted Living Entail?

Residents at Stonebridge at Montgomery embrace a rewarding, stimulating lifestyle that you deserve. Our CCRC not only offers community living that focuses on and enhances wellness, but it also stimulates intellectual development and encourages residents to embrace new challenges. And, as a CARF accredited senior living community, we continue to meet and exceed the most rigorous standards in senior living and care year after year.

When you or your loved one chooses Stonebridge Assisted Living, you choose:

Personalized Care - We work with you and your loved ones to create a plan of action that allows you to thrive through wellness opportunities designed to enhance the mind, body and spirit.
